HAS WORKED WELL

Religious Teaching In The Rural Communities Has Borne Rich Fruit

The annual meeting of the Knox County Association for Rural Religious Education was held Monday, Dr. H. V. Tweedie, president. The report of the treasurer Joseph W. Robinson showed $1291 paid in, with a deficit of $95. Miss Aiena Young, chairman of the finance committee, gave an informal report of the work of collectors, saying that workers groups had been organized in all towns of the county, and good work had been done. Collections had come in from nearly every community. They were making new friends, and gaining new members for the association. She had been greatly cheered by the response. Interest was constantly growing and the benefits extended over a large territory.

Miss Margaret McKnight, superintendent, said: "The interest in this work is not in dollars and cents, but in boys and girls." Through the religious instruction being given in the rural schools, organized Sunday Schools, transportation of scholars to church schools, and the Daily Vacation Bible school, the Association has given opportunity to all the boys and girls of Knox County, not being served otherwise, having reached in all a group of 777-679 children, 37 adults.

That the work is bringing results is being observed in many ways. The teachers in the rural schools testify to the value of this religious training as they see it exemplified among the children. One said: "The boys and girls are trying hard to put into practice things you are teaching them." Another: "We gain as much out of this period of 35 minutes as in all the other studies of the day."

The officers were elected: President—Rev. Hubert Leach, Thomaston.
Vice President—Dr. H. H. Plummer, Union.
Secretary—Earl Randall, Rockland.
Treasurer—Joseph W. Robinson, Rockland.
Auditor—Charles M. Starratt, Thomaston.
Executive board—O. N. Cross, Camden; A. K. Walker, Rockport; Rev. George H. Welch, Rockland; Rev. F. W. Barton, Tenant's Harbor; Millard Gilmore, Thomaston; Herbert Thomas, Warren.

Miss McKnight's complete report is filled with interesting statistics, and this paper regrets that opportunity is not available for its publication in full.

AS OTHERS SEE IT

New York Newspaper Man On Visit To Maine Notes Thing or Two

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
Though I have cooled off considerably since I came into your office to voice some opinions about Maine, I still have some observations to make that I think should prove interesting—observations, by the way, which from one point of view could be made equally well in possibly half the states of the Union.

First, I should like to express my pain in discovering that the good old hardheaded people of Maine have fallen as hard for gadgets, the curse and bastard child of the Machine Age, as any other group of people in the country.

I find the local stores crammed with vending machines, with fancy cash registers, and especially with automatic phonographs and player pianos. (Designed, I suppose, to catch the nickels of the gaily-living transients) all of which have been bought by the store proprietors on time payments. I know of one instance in which the most costly piece of equipment in a small store was the shiny big cash register, an instrument which in this case added nothing to the store's service, the quality of its merchandise nor even to the appearance of the place. Furthermore, I dare say that a good share of the money recorded in this machine was sent to the city every month as part of the tribute collected everywhere for the Gadget Age.

This particular store-owner could certainly ease the load of his "overhead" if he had a simple cash drawer instead of a $150 gadget for dingy a bell whenever he made a ten cent sale.

Weighing machines, for catching pennies, and gambling machines for catching the truly important quarter, also clutter up many an otherwise neat and orderly store.

The worst gadgets of all are probably the automatic musical machines in the restaurants. Big, ugly, expensive and collecting a frightful revenue from the community, they supply nothing in return but bad jazz and sentimental love songs.

Another example of the widespread weakness for useless machines is the employment of automatic traffic lights in small towns and even villages. More often than not they retard traffic rather than speed it, and in any event, wouldn't it be better to hire a traffic policeman or two to do the job? The big cities have found that automatic traffic control is far from perfect, and that one good traffic officer can save more hours of the motorists' and pedestrians' time than the fanciest machine control ever devised.

Besides, the use of men instead of machines helps to relieve the omnipresent problem of unemployment.

I should not like to give the impression that I am opposed to machinery, on the contrary, I am of the opinion that its intelligent use means our salvation. There is certainly nothing wrong with the idea of making more and better goods at a cheaper price. In fact this is the very essence of progress. But the goats must be separated from the sheep; the gadgets from the useful machinery; the over-costly from the properly efficient.

It seems to me that it is time for an inventory to be made in the towns and villages of America to the purpose that machinery, Machine Age gadgets, and man-power may receive their true and fitting valuation. This would be one of the finest ways of ridding the tourist of that feeling that in this day and age the villages and small towns of America embody all of the ugliness of the city without any of the city's advantages.

THIS IS "GOVERNOR'S DAY"

And Big Doings Are Expected At Knox Trotting Park —Track Record Broken Yesterday

Blue skies and plenty of sunshine greeted the second and last day of Rockland's Benefit Carnival at Knox Trotting Park.

This is as it should be, for it is Governor's Day, and His Excellency Gov. Louis J. Brann of Lewiston has

Curiosity killed a cat. But your's will be well rewarded if you go to Knox Trotting Park this afternoon

Olsen, C. Osgood of Princeton, A. Osgood of Exeter, Dick Reed of Coburn, McLeod of Camden, Nash of Bridgton, Keene of Portland and Greenlaw of M.T.T.

The mile run will find some speedy contenders, among them the Mazzeo brothers, Lavender of Bowdoin and a Harvard man. The dashes are sure to thrill the crowd with those speedy boys—Keene, Paladino, Melvin, Hopkins and Greenlaw—on the tape, and other entries coming.

The high jump has some good contenders, among them the Mazzeo brothers, Lavender of Bowdoin and a Harvard man. The dashes are sure to thrill the crowd with those speedy boys—Keene, Paladino, Melvin, Hopkins and Greenlaw—on the tape, and other entries coming.

—Reed, Simmons and Clunie of Lincoln Academy.

The broad jump and shot-put are also due to furnish thrills.

The Racing Yesterday

Some of the fastest horses in the State made their advent on the track yesterday afternoon, and a moderate sized but highly enthusiastic crowd saw three as good races as one would care to witness.

The feature of the day was, of course, the breaking of the track record. This feat was accomplished by Don Vernon in the first heat of the 219 trot and pace, the mile being done in 2:09 1/4. This laps a quarter second off the previous record held by Margaret Gratton. The new king of the track, Don Vernon, is owned by F. M. Stevens of Dover, Foxcroft, and Mr. Stevens was holding the reins. Don Vernon did not have things entirely to himself however as he finished third in the field of seven, and was obliged to do the fourth heat in 2:10 1/4, in order to take the long end of the purse.

The other heat "winner" was The Outlook, driven by Henry Clukey.

The race in the 223 class was won in straight heats by Calumet Chimes of Clukey's stable, and owned by J. H. Randall of Harrison.

Another Randall entry, Peter Pokey, was similarly a winner in straight heats in the 217 class, the runner-up being Jingle Bells, driven by Harry Clukey.

The character of yesterday's races may be judged from the fact that the slowest heat was done in 2:14 1/4.

The summary:

219 Trot and Pace	1	2	3	4
Don Vernon, F. M. Stevens	1	1	3	1
The Outlook, J. H. Randall	3	2	1	2
Sunrise, Weston Taylor	2	3	2	3
Thrust, O. Finkham	4	4	4	4
Marda Harvester, Dr. Hodgkinson	7	5	5	0
Peter R. Forbes, Mrs. Imman	5	7	7	0
Chestnut Earl, S. J. Luce	6	6	6	0
Time, 2:09 1/4, 2:12 1/4, 2:15 1/4, 2:10 1/4.

217 Trot and Pace	1	2	3	4
Calumet Chimes, J. H. Randall	1	1	1	1
Ridley Napoleon, Charles Con-	2	3	2	3
Paul Henley, J. R. Dyer	4	2	3	4
Direct Path, Frank Butler	3	4	4	4
Time, 2:14 1/4, 2:15 1/4, 2:18 1/4, 2:12 1/4.

This is the horse which is going to break the track record again this afternoon at 1 p. m., the dashes finishing on the track in front of the grandstand. The three well known coaches Clunie of Bangor, Richards of Camden and Durrell of Rockland will act as judges.

The javelin throw is sure to be closely contested with such well known stars as Olsen, Maine State champion, Osgood of Princeton and Keene of Fordham competing. The weight events will be contested by

THE LIONS MEETING

Dr. Greenway With Lecture and Slides Makes It a Very Entertaining Session

"Hunting Big Game with a Fountain Pen" was the intriguing title of Rev. Cornelius Greenway's stereoscopic lecture before the Rockland Lions Club yesterday. Dr. Greenway, who is a Brooklyn clergyman, summing at St. George, has spoken before the Lions on previous occasions, and was so well liked, both for his personality and his oratory, that he was made an honorary member.

He has one of the finest autograph collections in the country and his talk was again on that subject, illustrated by the cream of his 135 lantern slides.

The rarest autograph he said is that of Gen. Ludendorff, and next hardest to obtain is that of Von Hindenburg, the aged president of Germany. It took 12 years to get an autographed photograph of Henry Ford.

Dr. Greenway showed an excellent autographed photo of Al Smith; "whom I hope to see the next mayor of New York," O'Brien, he explained is but a rough stamp of Tammany.

The speaker described Hitler as "not a self-made man, but a product of a whole nation in chains." The real man in Germany, he said, is Dr. Goering, speaker of the Reichstag.

A picture of President Hoover and his cabinet was shown, this being accompanied by an interesting explanation of how the President, himself, took the photo into a cabinet meeting and obtained the desired signatures.

Commenting upon Franklin D. Roosevelt's autograph, Dr. Greenway offered the comment that it is no cinch to be President now.

Devoing the pessimism that he sometimes hears in Rockland Dr. Greenway offered the terse advice that "bellyaching does not bring business."

Exhibiting a picture of Count Von Luckner, Dr. Greenway referred to him "a wonderful fellow but an awful liar."

The lecture was a thoroughly enjoyable one, and this reference to it is abbreviated for the reason that Dr. Greenway is to repeat it for another local audience.

"Chet" Black told of tomorrow night's game between the Rockland and Waldoboro Lions at Community Park at 5:30. A very slight admission charge will be made. Next week the Lions will play the Camden Lions.

"Patchy" Saville, the retiring King Lion was presented with a handsome Lions pin. Included among the guests was Fred C. Green of the Boston Transcript.

WORD FROM ALASKA

Frank L. Brown, Once Clerk At Simonton's, Is Now In the War Department

Written under the date line of Wrangell Narrows, Alaska, June 27, an interesting letter has come to Mayor Charles M. Richardson and brothers from their cousin Frank L. Brown, formerly of this city. Mr. Brown is now master of U. S. S. Michie, hailing from Petersburg, Alaska.

While the letter is very largely of a personal character The Courier-Gazette is permitted to make some extracts which are certain to interest local readers:

"I joined this department in 1916, but started with the government three years before. I have been away about a year of that time, pilot for a Japanese line part of the time, and made two trips through the Canal the balance of it. I came back here in 1921 and took the Michie after she was wrecked the following year. I have been with her since, though on other dredgers some of the time. I had the Savannah when she came around from the East."

"It is hard to realize that we are getting on, but my sail ticket is starting its eighth issue and the steam and motor ticket on the sixth issue. And it is five years on an issue. It doesn't seem very long ago that I was a bit of a kid in Simonton's dry good's store, and Eddie (Richardson) was in a shoe store, but that was about 37 years ago."

"I counted 16 icebergs across Frederick Sound awhile ago, all coming from La Compie Glacier a short distance away. They were not visible from the upper part of the narrows."

"The town of Petersburg where we tie up Saturday noons is about 2000 population, about equally divided between low grade Slawshers and Swede or Norse fishermen. Looking at the mountains all around it would be hard to find one much under 5000 feet. It is daylight about 22 hours out of 24 just now, and the reverse is seen in winter. This is about 56 North and 137 West, I think."

"This is a great country for fish—salmon, cod, halibut, shrimps, crabs and clams, but not a good mackerel or haddock in the lot."

Speaking of his family connections Mr. Brown says that his father was 80 in April, and very active until heart trouble came on. Irvin is in ill health. William works for the department but is always on the Colorado River.

Mr. Brown has been a steady reader of The Courier-Gazette, and has kept well informed on matters back East.

SAW ITALIAN PLANES LAND

Rockland Woman Was At Shediak, N. B., When Gen. Balbo Made His Epochal Visit

Nothing for many months has held our interest more than the Italian fliers. A Rockland woman, Mrs. David S. Beach, who with her children is spending the summer in Moncton, N. B., was privileged to see them as they passed over that section of Canada and has written home a graphic description of the event:

"Yesterday I witnessed a thrilling sight, and think perhaps you would like to hear about it for The Courier-Gazette. Ever since I arrived here the chief item of talk has been the Italian fliers, and after three weeks it began to be a little bit tiresome. So that I couldn't seem to get up much enthusiasm. Finally the word came that they surely would be here July 15. The little town of Shediak was all decorated with bunting, flags and the Italian colors, and as it is a great summer resort, the beautiful summer homes were all decked out, too—the bunting and flags being augmented by many colored lights, etc.

"Shediak has a splendid bay, with a wonderful sandy beach—hard packed sand that never gets soft, no stones and so level that the tide is low one can go for almost a mile on this smooth level sand into the ocean. But of course it gets very deep when the tide comes in."

"I had spent the day July 11, with a childhood friend in Shediak, 19 miles from Moncton. The children went swimming and it was a most perfect day. I planned to spend the day following quietly at home. At noon, however, a telephone message came saying that the fliers were due in Shediak at 2 o'clock. Well, we didn't waste any time, but got away at 1:30, six of us packed in the car, and by 2 we were parked in a field along with hundreds of other cars on the rim of the sandy shore. There we sat enjoying the scenery —the many boats in the harbor, about 30 small boats, I should say, filled with supplies to be delivered to the planes and the thousands and thousands of people with more coming every minute.

"At 4:35 the planes were sighted away off. They looked like a flock of little birds. They came nearer and nearer and then the hum of the motors could be heard. They were in formation like the letter V, painted sort of an aluminum color which glistened in the sun—the most thrilling sight, you can imagine. They circled the harbor a few times and then landed by twos and threes, anchored to small buoys the same distance apart. It took almost an hour for them all to come down and find their places. I never saw anything, or expect to see anything, done more perfectly. When they were all settled in the water this long semi-circle of gray planes, 24 in all, was superb.

"A reception and banquet were held for the fliers, and Gen. Balbo and some members of his staff broadcast for a few minutes. Today we saw them again when they flew over Moncton on their way to Montreal. We were busy in the house and heard the roar of the motors, and there they were, flying three in a group until the 24 planes had gone over. That is Italy's contribution to the World's Fair at Chicago, a most wonderful message.

"I am sending you some newspapers which carry a detailed story which you may enjoy. I wondered if I were the only one from Rockland who saw the fliers in Canada. Anyway I felt it was too fine to keep to myself. We had hoped to have a call from the Lindberghs, too at Shediak, and the people were looking for him when he was at Halifax, but he went on to Cartwright, Labrador."

FEDERAL PROJECTS

Rockland Breakwater Light Is Included Among Contemplated Improvements

The first list of Federal projects under the recovery act included 14 separate projects for Maine to require a total estimated expenditure of $1,200,000. Of this amount $140,000 was the estimated cost of completing the lighthouse depot at South Portland.

Construction of a lighthouse depot at Southwest Harbor to replace the Bear Island depot was estimated to cost $30,000. A like expenditure was recommended to convert the light house tender Hibiscus, stationed at Portland, from a coal burning to an oil burning vessel.

The generator at the Boon Island Light station and the fog signal at West Quoddy Head would be replaced at a combined cost of $18,000.

Other projects listed included: Improvement of the lighthouse stations at Spring Point in Portland Harbor, Petit Manan and Rockland Breakwater, $14,747; construction or riprap at the Whale Back light station, Kittery, $12,000; purchase of a 38-foot buoy boat to be stationed at Portland, $5,000; urgent boundary maintenance work to be supervised by the International Boundary Commission, $32,500; construction of a laboratory building and extension of an implement building for the Department of Plant Industry at Presque Isle, $3,800; reconditioning and repairs to the bureau of fisheries hatchery buildings at Be theby Harbor, including repairs and reconditioning of ponds, water systems, pipe lines, etc., at fishery stations, $3,000; painting weather bureau storm warning signals on the coast, $100.

THE TRIAL BUOYS

Have Been So Painted That They Now Have Characteristic Markings

George E. Eaton, superintendent of lighthouses, gives notice that characteristic markers have been painted on the buoys used in connection with the Naval Trial Course off Monro's Island.

South Guide Buoy, 4' 16" diameter, solid black circle surrounded by black ring.

South Range Buoy, 3' 16" high, solid black diagonal square.

North Range Buoy, 2' 16" high, solid black triangle.

North Guide Buoy, 1' 16" diameter, solid black circle.

Two such characteristic markers are painted on each buoy, 180 deg. apart, and numbers of buoys appear on intervening quarters.

South Guide Buoy, 6 and North Guide Buoy, 1A, bear numbers only, as heretofore.

As the traveler from Augusta comes over the hill near Highmore farm and gets a view of the place, his attention is quickly attracted by a large white structure in one of the fields north of the buildings. This is a cage made of posts, wire, and cloth.

This kind of cage has been used for years in the Connecticut River valley for shading tobacco, to improve the leaf quality. In recent years hundreds of florists over the United States have adopted it for protecting their asters from insects, diseases, and sun. This practice has reached Maine, where the yellow disease is sometimes severe on asters. Interested Maine florists might find it of value to inspect the cage at Highmore Farm, and by leaving their names or by writing they can learn the source of the cloth and of detailed directions for the building of a cage. The cage at Highmore Farm happens to contain seed potatoes which the Experiment Station desires to keep free of certain diseases that are carried from field to field by insects, particularly plant lice or aphids.

BOWDOIN WAS HERE

Group of New England Boys On Famous Exploration Craft Now On Cruise

The auxiliary yacht Bowdoin famous as the vessel in which Commander MacMillan has made several expeditions to Labrador, has been in the harbor this week.

In command of Capt. H. C. Speed the Bowdoin is cruising along the New England coast for eight weeks with a group of boys from various parts of New England. The young men are being taught seamanship, radio and engineering, and will also be helped by the two college men who will act as counselors on the cruise. They are Robert D. Fallon, captain of the 1933 Harvard swimming team, and Arthur Gavett, all-round Boston University athlete.

The craft has been chartered from Commander MacMillan by Capt. Speed.

Among the boys on the yacht are Lawrence Outley, son of the former Mayor of Chelsea; Byron Glidden, Dover, Mass.; Ronald Davies, Arlington; Abbott Rand, Andover; Harold Speed Jr. Chelmsford; Lee Coombs, Newton Center; Robert Kelly, South Yarmouth, and Thomas Parker, Brookline. The crew besides the captain will consist of a cook and two seamen.

A man looking at some neckties tossed one or two aside rather contemptuously. Lingered, after having made his purchase, he noticed that the clerk put those he had so positively rejected in a separate box.

"What becomes of them?" he inquired.

"We sell them to the women who come in here to buy ties for men," was the reply—Lindsay Post.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

THE REAPER AND THE FLOWERS

There is a Reaper, whose name is Death, And, with his sickle keen, He reaps the bearded grain at a breath, And the flowers that grow between.

"Shall I have naught that is fair?" saith he, "Have naught but the bearded grain? Though the breath of these flowers is sweet to me, I will give them all back again."

He gazed at the flowers with tearful eyes, He kissed their drooping leaves; It was for the Lord of Paradise He bound them in his sheaves.

"My Lord has need of these flowerets gay," The Reaper said, and smiled; "Dear tokens of the earth are they, Where he was once a child."

"They shall all bloom in fields of light, Transplanted by my care, And saints, upon their garments white, These sacred blossoms wear."

And the mother gave, in tears and pain, The flowers she most did love; She knew she should find them all again In the fields of light above.

O, not in cruelty, not in wrath, The Reaper came that day; 'Twas an angel visited the green earth, And took the flowers away.

THE HUMMING BIRD'S NEST

A Scarce Article, But George St. Clair Knows Where There Is One

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—
Reading with much interest what you wrote about your humming bird visitor, and the question you raised as to his nest, leads me to say that I not only have seen a humming bird's nest, but the nest is on my own summer cottage place at Crescent Beach. For three years in succession its proprietor has each summer occupied it, and at this very moment is engaged in it, hatching out an egg. The nest is so small as scarcely to be noticed; looks like a knot on the limb of the tree. I don't wonder that you express doubt as to the existence of humming bird nests. I've been closely interested in birds for the past fifty years and this is the only one of such nests that I have ever seen.

THREE-TIMES-A-WEEK

Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.—I Cor. 16:13.

HAILING THE GOOD TIMES

What gave particular distinction to the opening of our city's new trust company, was the quietly expressed enthusiasm with which the patrons of it went about the business of renewing active relations with the rooms made familiar through their former years of acquaintance with them. Attractive banking quarters under any conditions, they doubly shone on this occasion under the illumination of flowers and the equally illuminated countenances of the banking staff, who after four months of chafing behind closed doors, experienced the joy of serving a public which fully shared in these emotions of satisfaction. Added to this was a general feeling of uplift that ran through the entire business sections, a feeling that the clouds of a community depression had at the last of it broken away and letting better times shine through. Presently we are to see a similar demonstration by the city's other bank, whose doors, already ajar, are waiting an hourly expected signal to throw themselves wide open. Then indeed will our people feel that they are set on the march to better times, with the wind blowing straight in their faces.

FLOWERS IN CAMDEN

Away back in boyhood, when we used to make long visits to Camden relatives, there grew up in us a conviction that it was a town unique among the towns of Maine. It was a conviction that has deepened with these years which have seen the town summer-colonized by distinguished people from the four quarters of the country, people whose wealth and public spirit and taste have wrought into the natural structure of the town such notes of development as command the admiration of every person privileged to set foot within its borders. One of the occasions by which each summer the world is given opportunity to observe some phases of development along these lines of beauty, is the flower show of the Camden Garden Club, when the private estates are thrown open to public inspection, adding by that much to the achievements along associated lines developed by the town's own citizenry. Such was the occasion Tuesday, when under perfect July skies the marshalled glory of growing things, set off by the skill of gardening and emphasized here and there by a notable architecture in homes, the Camden Garden Club saw another of its public occasions visited with overflowing success.

OUR VISITORS IN SUMMER

In the run of the season the newspaper office finds itself looked in upon by a considerable number of callers who qualify under the somewhat flexible designation of summer visitors. They may be tourists seeking a direction of travel, or looking for a spot to sojourn. Some may be wanderers returned to the old home town; or others passing casually through who run in for a moment to pay their respects—as the expression euphoniously goes—to the editor. Always these visitors are made welcome, in accordance with the doctrine by this paper steadfastly upheld, that no person at the summer-side shall adventure into Maine and find withheld from him any form of courtesy and goodfellowship which may in the least contribute to the satisfaction of his visit here. We like to meet 'em, we like to listen to what they have to say of us; and when, as sometimes happens, they find things to criticize, we give respectful ear, for that view of theirs, properly considered, may prove to us of more value than many words of indiscriminate praise. One of these friendly critics, a newspaper man out of New York, was lately in this calling group who see things in us that we ourselves, perhaps because of familiarity with them, are apt to pass lightly by. He was a bright chap, we enjoyed hearing him talk. A communication embodying some of his views may be found in another column.

KNOX COUNTY STANDS WELL

The fact that the Boston banking house has bought at a premium the recent refunding bonds issued by Knox County, pays testimonial to the credit standing of our county and the wisdom with which its affairs are carried on. The issue is not a large one—$25,000, succeeding to a similar temporary bridge loan that had matured. They bear an interest rate of four and one-half percent, and sold for a little better than $102. These are the ear-marks of gilt-edged bonds, and the market pays Knox County the earned compliment of so regarding them.

REVIEWING "CAMP"

Lawry Tells Us Some of the Interesting Things Which Happened At Fort Williams

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—As the annual encampment of the 240th C.A. came to an end Saturday morning at Fort Williams I will try to record a few of the high lights of the year.

After getting settled and getting our dinner we were mustered in and assigned to squads. I was assigned to Corp. Robinson's squad, but on the check-up two days later I was changed, along with Roger Mills, to Corp. Henderson's squad, which was the highest.

Everything was o. k. with us, although several of the recruits were aroused from their slumbers by the tipping over of their bunks. Beer was on sale at the canteen but I did not see signs of hard liquor around the camp. The new recruits were given the usual initiation, which varied from the hot oven to rolling an egg with their noses the length of the company street, and somehow the egg never reached its destination without being broken. One of the boys sent his girl an elephant which was the largest present sent home.

Visitors' Sunday found many at camp and it seemed as if everyone in camp had visitors but me—it was a long day for me. Battery F lost hard game to Headquarters team by a score of 7 to 5, although Don Robbins held them to only six hits, and struck out nine men in seven innings. Several wild throws, and the inability of the catchers of both sides to hold the pitchers made a much larger score than should have been. Mealey played a star game at shortstop and made two nice hits.

The consensus of opinion was that the Thomaston team showed the best of any of the Regiment. Shane pitched for Headquarters, he being a member of the Sunday Telegram League from Westbrook. On the play-off between Headquarters and Battery B of Sanford, the winner to play the crack Battery I team of South Portland, the score came out a tie and was called by the adjutant. Shane was called in after the first inning and held the team to no runs and struck out nine men in four innings. A bad decision at home robbed Shane of a victory and on the toss of the coin Battery B won, but did not make much of a showing against Sanford.

Bob and I were watching the big guns at Levitt. It is two miles from Fort Williams and we could see the flash and smoke seven seconds before we heard the report which made the ground tremble. At a distance of nine miles it took 33 seconds to reach the target, while on the 11-mile range it took 35 seconds to reach the mark. Battery D hit the target in center on its first shot which I was informed was about 5,000 to 1 against it. They will wear the Red E next year.

I thought of the Garden Club when I was going through Cape Cottage, and wished they could have seen the beautiful rambler roses in full bloom. Every house had at least two and some houses were covered with them. There are many fine houses along the cottage road.

The Fourth of July parade was one of the features of camp. The boys were given a hand all along the line of march. The boys were on deck at both fire calls and were always up and at them. We had a fire call at 2:15 Saturday morning and we stayed up after that and started to break camp. We took up the floor boards Friday afternoon. With Battery H we were one of the first to reach the station.

We arrived in Thomaston at 3:30 p. m. Saturday and six minutes later the truck was on its way with the first load of baggage. We were all tired and glad to be back as there seems to be no place like home.

Charles M. Lawry.

THE WAYS OF SCIENCE

Steel Ingots Intended For Battleships Converted Into Gas-Oil Cracking Chambers

Bayonne, N. J., July 18. Special.—The largest forging ever made, one of 3 huge cracking drums weighing over 140 tons each has just been received by the Tide Water Oil Refinery here, and is being erected under the supervision of Commander Edward Ellsberg, Chief Engineer. The massive steel cylinder will be used to crack residual fractions of crude oil in the manufacture of Triple X Tydol gasoline. It operates at a temperature of 950 degrees, and at the enormous pressure of 1400 pounds per square inch. The forging was made from an ingot of steel weighing more than 200 tons, produced in Bethlehem, Pa., during the world war, as a step in the manufacture of heavy plate for Uncle Sam's battleships. At the close of the war, the surplus ingots were stored pending the discovery of some peacetime use. The characteristics of the steel made it highly suitable for the exacting requirements of a high pressure "cracking drum." As a result the steel which had been designed to ward off the impact of 12-inch projectiles was adapted to contain gasoline vapor under high heat and pressure, and to withstand countless blows from unimaginably small molecules of gasoline.

LIKES THE PAPER

Renewing her subscription to The Courier-Gazette, Mrs. Walter V. O'Rourke of 608 So. 26th street, Philadelphia, writes: "I enjoy every issue of the paper, which keeps me in touch with the happenings of old friends. My best wishes to it for a very prosperous year."

Tommy—"Grandma, if I was invited out to dinner, should I eat pie with a fork?"

Grandma—"Yes, indeed, Tommy."

Tommy—"You haven't got a pie in the house that I could practice on, have you, Grandma?"—American Boy.

WITH THREE-GAME LEAD

St. George Has Almost Won the Pennant—A Snug Rub In the Battle For Second Place

Balance Of The Week
Thursday—Waldoboro at Rockland.
Friday—Rockland at St. George.
Saturday—St. George vs. Thomaston at Rockland.
Sunday, July 23—Camden vs. Thomaston at Rockland.

The League Standing
St. George now has a three-game lead over its nearest opponent, and the mathematical chance of its losing the pennant has practically been eliminated. Rockland has a chance in tonight's game to tie Waldoboro for second place.

	W	L	P.C.
St. George	10	3	.777
Waldoboro	7	6	.538
Rockland	6	7	.461

Thomaston	4	8	.333

St. George 7, Thomaston 6
Westberg was back with the St. George team Tuesday night, and Manager Rawley had every reason to feel thankful for it, as it was his spitting ground in the ninth inning which gave St. George the victory over Thomaston in one of the best games of the season.

The Thomaston batters took real kindly to Lowell's offerings in the early part of the game and had a lead of 4 to 1 when St. George turned the tables in the last half of the fourth inning. Successive hits by M. Simmons, Westberg, Monaghan, and I. Simmons netted three runs for the home team and tied the score. Thomaston picked up another pair in the fifth on singles by E. Grafton, M. Sawyer and Felt, but in the same inning St. George regained one of them on a double by Archer and a triple by M. Simmons. White's timely hit tied the score in the sixth, and the two teams, playing gallant baseball then went along to the last half of the ninth before the decisive blow was administered.

Davidson, the first batter, was out—Felt to Foster. L. Sawyer who had been playing a fine game at short was not quite equal to Archer's fast grounder, and the eloquent backstop was safe at first. He stole second, but Condon put extra struts in his legs and fanned Maurice Simmons. Then came Westberg clouting a ball which bounced off Lawrence Sawyer's shins, and "T. George had pulled another game out of the coals.

The batting of M. Simmons, E. Grafton, Stone and Davidson, foul catch by Felt were among the game's many features. The score:

DICK WON THE RACE
Rockland Man Captures the Free For All In Regatta At Castine

The Castine Outboard Club sponsored a small outboard regatta Saturday which was very successful from the standpoint of the committee in charge. The races were planned solely for the purpose of giving the many officials the training necessary for properly running the club's second annual regatta Aug. 26. The experience thus gained will help tremendously in perfecting the best arrangements possible for the drivers and public.

Of all the events scheduled the free-for-all was most thrilling to the spectators. This race was won by M. Dick of Rockland who maintained his lead at the start throughout the race. He was closely pressed by Commodore Thomas Wallace, of Castine, who consistently gained on the sharp turns, but lost out on the homestretch.

THE VALUE OF FISH

Those Which Inhabit the Sea Carry Quantities of Health Giving Elements

Boston, July 15
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—I am wondering how many of you read of the Gertrude L. Thebeaud, the famous racing schooner of the New England Fisheries, and the trip that was made by these fishermen to impress Washington and the nation, with the serious nature of our problems.

While the real purpose of this was to influence Congress, it is hoped that the publicity which was secured, brought to the minds of the American homemaker some favorable consideration of the great health foods which are offered to the public.

Fish which live in the sea carry enormous quantities of health giving elements. Iodine which is so essential to mental and physical health is found in the many varieties of fish and seafood, and is available for assimilation because it is in the form of organic iodine. Vitamins, so well known to the American public and so strongly recommended for their corrective properties, also reach the American table through the means of these healthful products.

The Federated Fishing Boats of America, Inc. are carrying on a nation-wide distribution of food facts and have found them to be interesting to the American homemaker. The following recipes are some which have been highly recommended. We suggest that you test them.

Stuffed Baked Haddock
Prepare a bread stuffing. Season a large haddock inside with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Fill the opening two-thirds full and then sew firmly. Cut two or three gashes in the side of the fish and lay a small piece of salt pork in each. Dredge with flour, sprinkle with salt and pepper, lay on rack or a piece of cheese cloth in a baking pan. Bake in a hot oven ten minutes, then reduce to moderate heat. Cook fifteen minutes for first pound, five minutes for every additional pound, basting frequently. The pork should supply sufficient fat for basting. If not, add a very little water.

Vegetable Fish Stew
Cook three onions chopped fine in two tablespoons of fat until light brown. Add two cupfuls each of potatoes, carrots, celery diced, and boiling water. Simmer gently until vegetables are half cooked. Pour into a greased casserole; add three cupfuls haddock or codfish, flaked, one-quarter teaspoon pepper, and one cupful white sauce. Bake at 350, deg. F. for forty minutes. Uncover last fifteen minutes of cooking. This casserole may be covered with buttered bread crumbs before cooking, for an added touch.

WEATHER
Welcome manifestations of sunshine have so far in the week contributed to the general joy—and in particular this was true in connection with Camden's Flower Show day, the weather conditions of which were ideal, adding the note of perfection to that occasion when the assembling of the beauties of nature lends distinction to this Maine region. The present morning opens with a mingling of cloud and sunshine that may take on any sort of conclusions, with fair weather generally expected, for even as the printing press begins to turn out its grist of home news the skies are cleared with mercury at 70 and rising. A great day for the folks at the trotting park.

Waldoboro plays Rockland at Community Park tonight. Second place at stake.

Four ex-service men from Bath are now operating the Maine Tea Company in this area.

The dirt is flying in St. George, where Road Commissioner Albert J. Rawley has 107 men on the payroll.

Mrs. Anastasia Harmon who recently discontinued her Kenmore apartments, is now residing at 31 Union street.

Smack Madeline & Flora, Capt. Charles Carver, arrived Monday with 2300 gallons of scallops for Rodney Feyler.

Browne Club is having a picnic tomorrow night at the Alford Lake cottage of Ernest C. Davis. Take dishes and silver for a fish chowder supper.

A large passenger bus and a large truck collided in front of Gonias store yesterday forenoon. Nobody was injured, but both cars needed the services of a beauty parlor.

The remains of Abraham Bradbury who died in Boston yesterday at the age of 93, arrived here last night, and were interred in the Jewish cemetery at Ingraham Hill. Mr. Bradbury was one of Rockland's pioneer Hebrew residents. The remains were accompanied here by the son, Harry B. Bradbury and three of the daughters, Philip Crockett came from Stonington for the funeral.

Mrs. H. P. Blodgett delightfully entertained officers and substitutes of Golden Rod Chapter Monday at her cottage, Jefferson Lake. It was an all-day affair, with an abundance of food for dinner and supper. Swimming, cards and sewing formed diversions. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Chapman, Mrs. Susie Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Hewett and sons, Elwood and Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stevens and son Paul, Mrs. Alta Dimick, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Church and daughters, Clara and Evelyn, Miss Anna Green, Miss Annette Segal, Mrs. Edna Melvin, A. L. Briggs and Mrs. Blodgett.

The Garden Club meets next Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. W. O. Fuller, Beech street. Members are asked to note change in day, made necessary by the Montpelier celebration on Tuesday. Mrs. Benedict of Medomak, a prominent summer resident will speak on flower arrangement, points used in judging at flower shows, and give general information regarding conducting flower shows. At this particular time when the annual flower show is booked for the near future, this is most opportune, especially as Mrs. Benedict is an authority in garden club lore. Mrs. Benedict will give actual demonstrations of flower arrangement, and for this purpose members are asked to have flowers and pet containers at this meeting. Flowers should be cut on Tuesday and placed in water, and taken to Mrs. Fuller's home Wednesday morning if possible, in a pair or large container. As this is the time of year when garden blooms are not so plentiful as a little later, members are requested to take what flowers they can, even if they are few.

This may not be a good summer for some things, but it has provided us with a surplus of mosquitoes which appear to have an uncommonly keen appetite.

Up in Aroostook County next week there's going to be lots of interest in tennis, for the eighth annual Aroostook Valley open tournament will be held at Fort Fairfield. There will be five classes for men and women.

BAIN BREAKS RECORD
The largest scallop fare ever brought into an American port, according to men versed in such matters, was brought yesterday to Rodney E. Feyler's wharf by the smack Pauline Boland, commanded by Capt. A. A. Bain. It was brought from the Georges and consisted of 3015 gallons, topping by more than 400 the previous record. Three Rockland smacks are making trips to the Georges.

In one of those characteristic lightning trips William Rogers Chapman blew into town just as the paper went to press and turned the office upside-down with the fervor of his greeting. He and Mrs. Chapman were enroute to Bangor.

Edwin Edwards Jr., Edward Heller Jr. and Sterling Morse made up a camping party on Monroes Island over the weekend. The high light was a call from the crew of the Bowdoin, MacMillan's sturdy boat which has been in the harbor for a few days.

Young Walter Reynolds and Young Freeman are going to exhibit their pugilistic wares in Light's Pavillion at Washington Friday night of next week, and Mitchell Hartley will pull off some of his feats of magic. Oliver Hamlin is managing the events.

Fred C. Black has been in Boston this week on important business connected with the canning industry. Gerald Black accompanied him to see how some of the big league ball games compared with the Twilight and Big Five.

The West End Hotel in Portland, so familiar to all Knox County travelers, will shortly be torn down, and may be replaced by a filling station which dispenses gasoline instead of victuals. The hotel closed its doors last May after 40 years of operation.

Oliver Rowe, quartermaster on the steamer Belfast, was before Judge Carleton Doak in Belfast Saturday charged with assault with a knife upon Carroll Merchant of Belfast. Rowe was represented by H. C. Buzelli. The case was continued until July 29. Rowe gave bail of $1000.

Nobody passes the residence of Robert M. Packard at Rockland Highlands without exclaiming over the beauty of the Queen of the Prairie and the side of the house and stable. Mr. Packard, who recently went on the telephone retired list, is about equally proud of his first vegetable garden, which is unquestionably the best in the city.

FIRST NATIONAL OPENING
The First National Bank of Rockland has been granted its charter, according to telegraphic information received last night and the only remaining delay to opening is the technicality of a final hearing before Judge Hale of the United States District Court in Portland. A three day notice of this hearing must be posted and following the successful conclusion of the session the new bank is all set to go. Presumably the hearing will be held early next week, and with all plain sailing it appears that Rockland will be on a 100 per cent banking basis the middle of to coming week.

Shortly before midnight Saturday the crowd from Perry's Market are going to embark on their annual picnic, equipped with endless sporting paraphernalia and rationed extravagantly. The ship bearing the merry-makers sails under sealed orders, so the place at which the outing is to be held cannot now be revealed. But if it was on Marblehead Rock off Crescent Beach, the boys would have a good time.

Have you been to those oldtime dances at Union town hall every Friday night? If not, you've missed a lot—adv.

GEORGE W. SMITH
The death Sunday of George William Smith, which occurred at his home on Summer street, came as a shock to many friends, who, while aware of the fact that he had been a semi-invalid for some years, did not know that his condition had reached an acute stage. He had lately received treatment at the Lahey clinic in the Deaconess Hospital, Boston, where it was learned that he was in the final stages of his illness. He was brought home from the hospital Saturday, surviving but one day.

Mr. Smith was born in Worcester, Mass. Jan. 30, 1871. He was educated at Groton School and Williams College, traveling extensively meantime in this country and Europe, partly for the benefit of his health. He came to Rockland in the early Nineties to engage in the wholesale fish business, from which he retired after a few years. With the establishment of this business relationship he became a permanent resident of Rockland, the house in which he died having been built for him about 1902.

He took an early interest in local affairs and served in the Common Council in 1894 under Mayor Frank C. Knight, and again in 1895 under Mayor John Lovejoy. Masonry held a strong charm for him and he had attained the 32d degree. He was past illustrious master of King Hiram's Council, R.S.M., past eminent commander of Claremont Commandery and for many years was its treasurer; and also held office in Gen. Knox Chapter of Rose Croix. He had served as one of the officials of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Smith was among the earliest members of Rockland's automobile colony, and obtained a great deal of pleasure from his motor travels and in the entertainment of friends in that manner. His intimate associates found in him a most loyal friend.

Mr. Smith's first wife was Miss Mayde Simpson of Bangor, and from this union came two children, Malcolm of Pittsburgh and Gertrude of Rockland. They survive him, together with his second wife (Maude Knowlton); one brother Philip Smith of Short Hills, N. J. and Tenant's Harbor; and one sister, Mrs. Clarissa Dey of Summit, N. J.

The funeral services yesterday afternoon were conducted by Rev. Ernest O. Kenyon of St. Peter's Episcopal Church. The bearers were Frank W. Fuller, Homer E. Robinson, Charles L. Robinson and Arthur L. Orne. The burial was in Achorn cemetery.

VACATIONS and HEALTH

By Dr. ERNEST H. LINES
Eminent Authority and Chief Medical Director
New York Life Insurance Company

SWIMMING

SWIMMING is excellent exercise for developing the body. Most people spend their holidays near some lake or stream, or the seashore, where they can indulge in this invigorating sport, which has been given added impetus by the interest taken in it by President Roosevelt.

Generally speaking, swimming is an art that must be acquired. It should be learned by everyone at as early an age as possible. The ability to swim only a few strokes may be enough to save your life some day. Seldom do beginners show any ability to swim when suddenly immersed in deep water. It is very dangerous, therefore, to push a person who may not be able to swim into deep water. If you do happen to be the victim of such a foolish "prank" and can't swim, don't get panicky and struggle and gulp a great quantity of water, but hold your breath and by gentle movements, keep the head above water.

Many swimming accidents could have been avoided if people had taken certain precautions before swimming or diving in a strange place. Learn about the currents and tide. Never dive in unknown, shallow or rocky waters. Even in clear waters remember that "a deep dive is often a dangerous dive."

Avoid weeds and undercurrents when swimming in the open. If you are swimming in a river and accidentally get into a bed of weeds, stop kicking and work with your arms. The current will usually let you through. If you are carried away by the current of a river, select a spot down-stream on either bank and swim diagonally towards it. Never mind where you have left your clothes. Your life is more important.

If you are swimming in a rough sea, do not attempt to breast the waves. As each wave rises, swim through it and thus save yourself the buffeting that might cause insensibility.

When swimming in either pools or open water, investigate the cleanliness of the water. Many diseases are water-borne.

Cramps
Cramps are spasmodic contractions of the muscles that are beyond the control of the individual and come without warning. They are a common cause of drownings. Don't swim for at least two hours after eating, never drink any cold beverages immediately before swimming, and never swim beyond your depth in very cold water. Severe indigestion or cramps may result. Cramps also occur when the muscles are exhausted, and no person who may be tired or suffering from debility of any sort should go beyond his depth, or out of reach of assistance.

Over sixty per cent of drownings occur in the four months from May to August, and nearly half of these fatalities are among men and boys under twenty-five years of age. Don't overestimate your strength and swim far unless you are accompanied by a boat and a level-headed person who has been trained in life saving. It is also dangerous to go swimming alone or at night. Contrary to popular belief, a large percentage of drowning cases occur among people who are considered good swimmers.

This is the eighth of a series of 12 articles on Vacations and Health. The ninth, on First Aid, will answer the questions:

1. What is a life preserver?
2. How can bleeding from a cut artery be stopped?
3. What should be done for burns, dog bites, fractures and electric shock?

EAST WASHINGTON

Mrs. Lillian E. Morton
Many friends and relatives learned with sorrow of the death of Lillian E. Morton, who died in Rockland July 13, following a major operation.

Mrs. Morton was born in West Washington in 1868 and with the exception of four years which were spent in Farmington where Mr. Morton engaged in the bakery business, had always lived in this town. She was a faithful, loving wife and mother, a wonderful homemaker, kind friend and neighbor, and will long be remembered by many. She is survived by her husband L. L. Morton, two sons Arnold and Lawrence, two sisters Mrs. Cora Bowman of Jefferson, Mrs. Lula Morton of Farmington, six grandchildren and other relatives more distantly connected.

Funeral services were held at her late home Sunday, Rev. William R. Wood of Penny Memorial Church, Augusta, officiating. Interment was in the family lot at Washington village cemetery. The honorary bearers were Arnold, Lawrence and Lloyd Morton, Harold Carmon, Arthur Bowman and C. M. Bows.

Floral tributes were many and beautiful and spoke eloquently of the love and esteem of those with whom she had associated in life. Truly she was loved by all who knew her and leaves a precious memory and example to those left behind. Acting bearers were A. E. Johnston, W. M. Staples, W. F. Hatch and H. B. Cunningham.

VOTING ON REPEAL

Now We Come To Southern States On Which "Dry" Base Their Hopes

Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee—barometers for prohibition sentiment in the deep South—will vote this week on the issue of repeal and the dries say they are confident of the outcome while the wets say they are jubilant.

"Tennessee by 50,000," predicted realists in that State, which votes Thursday.

"The wets know, as well as I do, that the one and only hope they have of beating us is that of fraud and they are therefore preparing to practice it in the largest and grossest possible way," said Rev. John F. Baggett, chairman of Tennessee's united prohibition forces.

"Stand by the party and states' rights, shouted realists who have stumped Alabama. This state and Arkansas vote Tuesday.

"We expect Alabama to go against repeal by a handsome majority," said Charles Rice, anti-repeal campaign manager for this state.

And over in Arkansas, repeal leaders smilingly say "just wait and see, this state is no longer in doubt."

But prohibitionists disagree and predict a smashing victory in the home state of Senator Joe Robinson.

"You see that old boy over there? He thinks in terms of millions." "He doesn't look to me like a financier."

"He isn't. He's a bacteriologist."—Karikaturen.

A PLEA
[For The Courier-Gazette]
The mountains lift their lofty heads Above the sordidness of life. Above the drab and commonplace, Above the sorrow and the strife. God, let me from the mountains learn To keep my thoughts on higher things. Ignoring talk that cuts and hurts Relentlessly, with biting stings. Make me so big that through the years I see but beauty as I walk, And daily do my simple tasks Unhurt by envy, petty talk. Seeing the best in every one, Hoping the best for every man. Facing the sun and pressing on. Helping God to fulfill His plan. Anu Ward. Rockland.

The Trial of the Century

An appreciative audience, among whom were many from Rockland and Camden as well as Rockport witnessed the first presentation of the play sponsored by the Methodist Ladies' Aid at Town hall Tuesday evening. This play, coached by Miss Betty Gordon of Chicago, was in the form of a mock trial, the principals in a breach of promise suit being plaintiff, Miss Nellie Bly, whose identity remained a mystery until the curtain was about to drop at the end of the last act; defendant, Ernest Crockett.

Others in the cast were Judge, Fred Crockett of Camden, who filled the office with dignity, using the potato-masher gavel in a very decisive manner; he was appropriately garbed in a robe of purple velvet; clerk, Maurice Miller; crier, Gertrude Payson; foreman of jury, Harold Graffman; attorney for defense, Charles Dwinall, Jr. of Camden; attorney for plaintiff, Betty Gordon; witnesses for plaintiff: Nellie's friend Doris Ballard; postmaster, George Crockett; jeweler, Rev. F. F. Fowler; minister, Earl Achenorn; Nellie's aunt, Orna Burns; milkman, Guy Annis; nurse, Floris Quimby of Camden Community Hospital; lady barber, Ruth Orbeton; witnesses for defense: friend, Roland Richards; defendant, Ernest Crockett.

Members of the jury, dressed in ridiculous costumes, with the exception of Marion Weidman who was attired as an up-to-the-minute young lady wearing an attractive beach pajama suit and hat, were Mrs. Nellie Simmons, Ella Wellman, Addie Wentworth, Nana Wentworth, Mattie Russell, Della Larson, Keith Crockett, Herbert Crockett, Harold Graffman, Maude Davis, Mildred Easton and Miss Weidman. The pleas of the two attorneys in behalf of their clients were the highlights of the evening, being given in a forceful and convincing (if manner). The local hits were very effective and caused much laughter as did the conduct of several of the witnesses and jurors, who could well be termed comedians in the truest sense.

During intermission while the jury was out these specialties were presented: Rockport Rollickers, Clarence Fish, director, orchestra selections; dance divertissement, the Noyes Sisters; Indigo Blue Trio, Helena Upham, Marie McFarland, Iona Robinson, The Last Chord Quartette, Fred Crockett, Ernest Crockett, Roland Richards, Earle Payson; song and dance act, Virginia Noyes, Dwight Noyes and Earlene Davis. The Prize Baby Milk Drinking Contest brought down the house. The infants wheeled on to the stage in baby carriages were Maurice Miller, Mildred Easton, Marion Weidman and last but not least came Earle Payson in a wheelbarrow. All were dressed in infants' clothes and were given bottles of milk to drink in the shortest possible time. The parents were represented by Ernest Crockett, George Crockett, Ella Wellman and Orna Burns.

Court was then resumed and the verdict was announced in favor of the defendant. At this moment Nellie Bly appeared on the stage from the audience and her identity was revealed as Maynard Ingraham, who made a very attractive young lady. The play was repeated Wednesday evening.

Sunday's games—Rockville vs. Pirates at Rockland (1 p. m.); Snipers vs. Battery F at Thomaston; Rockport at South Thomaston.

With some of the Big Five teams swinging into the second half of the season, having played 12 of their 24 games, there are still a few uncertainties. The South Thomaston nine, champions in the two previous years remain on top. Clark Island was an early and serious challenger to the lead by winning seven of its first eight games but a jinx has hit it and it has lost four straight. Rockville has been winning consistently to jump into second place. Rockport started with a spurt but slowed down while the Snipers slow in starting have snapped to and started a string of successive victories which have reached four, moving down the leading teams with their tight defense. Battery F has been seersawing back and forth while the Pirates hold down the cellar berth although they have won two of the four games played since the shift of managers.

MRS. JULIA A. HUNTLEY

Julia A. (Ackley), wife of Henry R. Huntley, a veteran of the Civil War, died at her home at 22 Grace street July 12, after an illness covering but 12 days—falling steadily despite the wealth of loving care and best medical attention.

Mrs. Huntley was born in Cutler Nov. 30, 1855, daughter of Mary (Clark) and Ezra Ackley, spending her young womanhood in her native town. Forty-two years ago she accompanied her husband and children to Rockland where she had since resided except brief periods in Connecticut and New York.

She was early united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints, and was always a sincere worker, strong of faith and standing always for the right. She was a member of Edwin Libby Relief Corps 40 years, loyal to its principles and ever ready to lend a helping hand. She held the office of guard and patriotic instructor and could have filled other offices had not her family cares prevented her from feeling assured of giving her best.

As a member of the American Legion Auxiliary she will be greatly missed. She was a charter member and served on important committees. She was chaplain in the first years of the order's existence; also sergeant-at-arms. She was a Gold Star Mother, a son Clarence B. having given his life during the World War.

When the Spanish War Auxiliary was organized, Mrs. Huntley became a member and held offices of importance. Another son, James R. Huntley, served in the Navy during the Spanish War, dying in New York Aug. 14, 1932. Thus Mrs. Huntley had the distinction of being the wife of a Civil War veteran and the mother of a Spanish War veteran and of a World War veteran.

Mrs. Huntley's importance in the city was further borne out by the fact that she served in the city council during the administrations of the late R. S. Thorndike and E. L. Brown in 1922 and 1923. She was also a member of the Three Quarter Century Club and took much interest in the annual meetings.

Among her lovable traits was her remarkable patience and cheerfulness during her entire life. Faithfulness to her family was a marked trait in her character, for in addition to rearing her own eight children, she devoted herself to bringing up her granddaughter, Mrs. Janette Molway of Staten Island, the daughter of the late Capt. Charles R. Huntley, who was lost at sea in 1916, and the great granddaughter, Julia M. Molway, who has made her home with Capt. and Mrs. Huntley since infancy.

The remarkable display of floral offerings at the funeral told more plainly than words the affection and esteem held for her.

Mrs. Huntley is survived by her husband, Capt. Henry R. Huntley, four daughters, Mrs. Grace Lewis and Mrs. Eliza Plummer of Rockland, Mrs. Lula McCrea of Orion, Ill., and Mrs. Linda Hanners of Brooklyn; two brothers and four sisters, of whom Mrs. Alice Foster of Winslow was present during her sickness; and also by 18 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church, Rev. Charles E. Brooks officiating. An impressive part of the service was conducted by the Relief Corps. Mrs. L. N. Littlehale presided at the organ, offering comfort in the old hymns beloved by the deceased and other members of the family. Mrs. Ida Huntley and

Mrs. Gladys Morgan sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Abide With Me," adding beauty and solemnity to the occasion. The bearers were Eddie Huntley, Theodore Lewis, Fred Lewis and Lester Plummer. Interment was in Sea View cemetery.

Death is not all! Faith bridges still the tide.
Where to oblivion the soul would ride,
Then death is but the glorious crossing over.
To God's eternal, holy, promised shore.
Death is not all! Its shadows deep shall lift.
And Hope shall bring to man God's greatest gift—
Immortal life. In conquering triumph
They head to death, for death is not the end.

KEEPERS OF THE LIGHT

What Harold Vinal, Poetic Child Of the Sea Coast, Thinks Of the Lighthouses

Reprinted From the Christian Science Monitor

Who that knows and venerates the rugged coast line of New England can fail to hold in affection those guardians of its security—the lighthouses. Perched on some rocky promontory, or rising sheerly from some hidden reef, they stand sturdily overlooking the tides, fronting the trade winds of summer, the blustery gales of winter.

If, as a child, I had been asked to choose my favorite vocation, I think I should have declared promptly for the salty life of the lighthouse-keeper. Although that ambition was not to be realized, my love of lighthouses persists; and as often as may be I mount the spiral stairs of one or another and gaze spellbound over the heaving expanse of open water. Far off the buoy tolls eerily, lifted by the ground-swell; the surf recedes, leaving a lacy fringe of foam along the shore.

Only those born to tend the beacon know with what supreme patience the seasons must be met. Spring guilelessly tosses the waves with light abandon; summer is dreamy and calm; autumn enters with a rush of spume and breaker; winter brings stern and arctic isolation. The lighthouse-keeper knows all this, but he keeps his diary in his own mind and it goes unrecorded.

As for me, I know only the summer lighthouses standing unperturbed and unbuffeted, comfortable and agreeable to look at, less fortresses against the embattled elements than fairy castles reared against the blue. The lighthouses along the picturesque and hardy coast of Brittany I know, to be sure, and likewise those on other points on the continental sea line; but I have a firm belief that, apart from all others, those lighthouses that dot the stormy coast of Maine are most enchanting. As I write, I vision them rising out of the Atlantic—shell-pink in the first flush of dawn, swanwhite at noonday, and in the moonlight pillars of pearl against the domed and starry sky.

Those who lack this strangely nostalgic love of the tides cannot conjure up the beauty that comes over islands at night, or image the Maine coast with its pungent spruces, its granite bulwarks watched over eternally by those Cyclops' eyes. Among scents of fern and balsam, the lighthouse stands knee-deep in kelp and weed, indifferent to the barnacles at its base. But those beacons remote from greenness, planted on some crag in the center of blueness, are untouched by earth's odors and mutations.

Once I had the privilege of remaining in a lighthouse over night. A party of us had embarked from the island for a peep at this wonder, five miles out in the open sea. Being a native of that country and claiming distant kinship with the keeper himself, I was fortunate enough to stay behind after the others had sailed away, their small craft dwindling to a speck on the horizon. Dusk fell; I was alone. There was little talk among us then, for men who know the sea have learned silence. No breakers boomed, no stormy prelude sounded from the summer sea. Only the subdued music of the waves ebbing and flowing. Below, beyond the boat landing, a dory drifted like a bit of flotsam.

JESUS' KINGSHIP

Editor Staples' Saturday Night Talk In the Lewiston Journal

The entry of Jesus into Jerusalem has been much discussed. Was it a triumph; was it a disappointment?

Doubtless, the Twelve saw little in it to please them. What most people wanted was a definite proclamation of actual Kingship. Such a proclamation would have been followed by an uprising that would doubtless have driven Rome out of Palestine. Later, 33 years later, such an uprising took place in Palestine and the legions of Rome were crushed by an undisciplined but war-like mob. Jerusalem was evacuated; portions were burned.

It is said that perhaps there were a million Jews in and around Jerusalem at that time. All were nationalists. An uprising under the leadership of the Nazarene would have been significant. We may never know how near Jesus may have come to saying the word. He refused temporal kingship that he might establish an insurrection far mightier. An insurrection which is identified with the spread of Christianity, a miraculous movement, changing the course of all civilization.

Later, Pilate said to Jesus, "Art thou a King?" "Certainly," said Jesus (Moffatt's translation).

Jesus was King, as he proclaimed that morning as he left the house of Lazarus in Bethany. There has never been such another king. He reigns over a great many hearts, who bow in silence. Amid all the noise and tumult of the times, millions yet bow to him. The proclamation of that morning 'ere he rode upon the ass's colt through the golden gate of Jerusalem was as though engraved on tablets of human hearts. It has nothing to reign over except Justice, Love, Courage, Fortitude, Peace, Honesty, Law Order and Happiness—but that is quite a Kingdom.

This Kingdom has built palaces for relief of want, suffering and woe. It has established missions; built churches; changed wicked laws into good; gone as a good Samaritan over on the other side of the street and bound up the wounds of those sore beset; has gone on battlefields to save lives, which old-fashioned hate had endangered; and is yet going powerfully as a Kingdom. It is our oldest kingdom. All others have fallen. No other monarch has reigned so long, as does he who rode into Jerusalem that day 1900 years ago.

Anybody may join the kingdom, as it happens. And it is a very good country for the human heart, conscience and soul to inhabit.

that incongruous appurtenance of the Maine breakfast—pie!

At midday we had visitors from the island. They came chugging up in a dingy launch, bringing with them the laughter and bustle of a commonplace world. Alas! the enchantment was broken.

Lighthouse-keepers are friendly people—doubtless because of their enforced solitude. Proudly they explain the intricate workings of the beacon to those who venture from the mainland, telling tales of legendary hurricanes, of great encounters with the wintry blasts. It is a welcome respite from the monotony of their days.

But to me something of the charm has vanished. I am reminded that, after all, I must return. My home is not in these windy spaces; I must go back to my own country, to reality. Or, as it really I was relinquishing? Perhaps in this lonely fastness one comes closer to wisdom, communes with an inner verity which can so easily be lost in the outer world.

So I am soon adrift again. I have spoken my farewells. The launch rocks gently as the motor gathers headway. I look back, hoping to catch a last salute, a friendly hand waving me good-bye. But the fog has enveloped us. Nothing is left of that white shaft. Only the bell-buoy tolling and the mewing gulls. Yet I know that the light will be kept, that its ray will shine forth over the waters at the ebb of another day.

HE WAS BORN IN ROCKLAND

Remarkable Business Career Of Man Who First Saw the Light Of Day In This City

In a preceding issue of this paper appeared the story of the death in Miami of Dr. William Warren C. Spencer, a sketch of whom, printed in the Miami Herald, stated that his birthplace was Rockland, Maine. In connection with reprinting the article the query was raised whether there was any connection with the Dr. Spencer who had made a brief stay here and turned over his practice to Dr. Wasgatt. A letter received by this paper from Miss Alice C. Spencer, the daughter, reads:

Dr. William Warren C. Spencer was Native of Rockland, Maine

"Your letter of recent date was held here for me until my return from Boston. In reply to same, I wish to say that my dear father, the late Dr. W. W. C. Spencer, was born at Rockland, on September 30, 1854. He never lived at Union, as he went to Bangor when about five years old, at about the time his father died. His mother died when he was 12 years old and he was brought up by his grandmother Stevens. His mother's name was Susan C. Stevens, and she was born at Guilford. I often heard father say that his grandfather built one of the first bridges and that it is still standing. I cannot tell you just where it is; as I never have been in that part of Maine, and have forgotten."

"I will inclose a biography of father's life as I know it. Of course, he did many things of importance that I do not remember. He surely was a wonderful man, loved and respected by everyone. A man of whom Rockland and his native State can justly be proud, for what he was and did was by his own efforts, for he was left alone very young and had to depend upon himself."

Life of a Remarkable Man

William Warren Conant Spencer, M. D., son of William and Susan C. (Stevens) Spencer was born at Rockland, Maine, September 30, 1854. His early education was obtained in the public schools of Bangor, where he spent his boyhood days. His great-grandmother was a half-breed Penobscot Indian, he being a 1-16 Indian of which he was very proud. He was in line of descent from Chief Orono who made the treaty between Maine and Massachusetts. He also traced his ancestry from the King of England, being nearer to the King than the Duke of Marlborough, and he always wore the English crest.

His father died when he was five years old and his mother passed away when he was twelve, and he was brought up by his grandmother.

At the age of 17 Spencer went to Philadelphia, where he started in the patent medicine business, later returning to Bangor, where he married at the age of 19, Mary (Hosman) Hurd, a widow with two daughters, Eveline and Minnie, the latter marrying into the famous Rothschild family of Paris, France. From this union were born three children, Majetta M., a daughter who died at 16 at Boston; and two sons who died in infancy. His wife died about 1881. He spent about twelve years in commercial pursuits in Bangor. Then studied medicine, and graduated from the Maine State Eclectic College and began practice in his native State, having his office on Main street, Bangor.

Spencer served as Chairman of the State Democratic Committee; helped to put through the electric light bill at Biddeford, where he had his headquarters; was a delegate to the first good roads convention at Portland; owned real estate in many of the principal cities and at his decease had a beautiful summer home at York Cliffs.

Desiring a larger field, he removed to Massachusetts and practiced at Gloucester and other leading cities. His specialty the treatment of chronic cases of dyspepsia and catarrh; and he lectured in Tremont Temple. The Warren Sanitarium of Boston was owned and operated by him, and he was assisted by Drs. J. E. H. Lane and George Carleton Hale. The Exeter (Florida) hotel, one of the most thorough and complete sanitariums in the country, was conceived and built by him which sanitarium he himself entered after the flu epidemic of 1890, as a tubercular patient having been refused admittance at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

During his convalescence he built the railroad from Leesburg to Bartow, Florida; owned orange groves at Yalaha, Tavares, Arcadia and other cities in the state; owned and developed phosphate mines; was interested in the Tavares, Atlantic and Tampa Bay Railroad Co.; he made the first survey of the Florida East Coast Railroad from Titusville to Rockledge, and blazed the way on horseback to Lake Worth; ran for Senator in the Greenback movement, entered the political fight for the new court house between Leesburgh and Tavares; and was given the honors of the house at Tallahassee. He later returned to Boston, and married Ida E. (Hale) Lane, of Nashua. She died in 1918.

Dr. Spencer was house physician for a number of years for the Houghton & Dutton department store, during which time he invented the Spencer elevator safety guard, now used on all elevators. One is still in use at the Houghton & Dutton store and bears his name. He later organized the Spencer Elevator Safety Guard Co., having as directors such men as B. F. Dutton, and John Shepard, Sr., both deceased. John Shepard, Jr. is present mayor of West Palm Beach. He fought the bill through legislature compelling all elevators to use this guard.

He invented a patent bond for use in large enterprises; was interested in the Northwestern Packing Co., Sioux Falls and built a large packing plant there; owned one-half interest in the Huff Syndicate; interested in the Land Improvement Co., Dighton, Mass.; owned many acres at Lake Sunapee, New Hampshire; interested in the Albermarle Land & Lumber Co. in Virginia; broke the Jenigan bubble of taking gold from the sea; invested and lost in lighter-than-air craft, under the Pendleton patents, which he acquired; owned and operated gold, silver and placer mines in Old and New Mexico; owned the old Tiffany turquoise mine; drilled some of the first oil wells in New Mexico; sponsored the bill for free text books in the public schools of Boston; opened the first tea and coffee store in Boston with a prize in each pound package, and sold it under the law "contents unknown"; Chairman of the Columbus Avenue Board of Trade, Boston; built three and a half miles of streets in Brockton, Mass.; owned the Bouvais & Crawford shoe factory at Brockton, and when he sold this factory he went before the assembly of the labor union so that it could be opened and run without any strikes. I believe this is one factory where there has been little, if any, trouble. He entered the oil fields of Kentucky in 1918, and became a successful operator, drilling the first gusher in Allen County. During this time he invented a sucker rod hoist for pulling wells.

He was widely known as a financier and capitalist.

For many years Dr. Spencer had been interested in the Kings' Daughters Children's Home, Nashua, to which his late wife left a fund, and he paid for the college education of five persons.

He was a member of many Masonic bodies.

Dr. Spencer returned to Florida in 1923, spending his winters at Miami, where he had extensive real estate holdings. His home was at 1888 Beacon street, Brookline, Mass., which he built over twenty-five years ago when he retired from practice of medicine. In 1920 he adopted his private secretary, Miss Alice Martha Coffey, daughter of the late Michael
